Compared to last week: Alfalfa hay remains steady. Demand is very good for all qualities and classes of hay as the severe drought conditions have greatly reduced grazing and supplies of forage. Cow/calf operators are already beginning to wean their calves and ship them to market as they try to stretch their feed supplies to keep their cow herd intact to the greatest extent possible. Rain showers have been popping up across the state but as the growing season winds down the damage to forage supplies has already been done. Corn silage harvest in full swing, as well as some combining in very dry areas already. 4th cutting of alfalfa taking place where the rains finally came and allowed enough regrowth to be cut.
