Direct Hay Weighted Average Report for week ending 10/16/2020

Volume
	This Week	Last Reported ()
		Last Year

Please Note: The above volumes (tonnage, acres, and bales) listed on this USDA LPGMN report are for confirmed trades only, it does not include estimated volume (tonnage) for bids or offers to the trade.

Compared to the last report: Hay prices are mostly steady to firm. Drought conditions are expanding and worsening in the Panhandle, West, North, and Central regions. Hurricane Delta dropped up to 4 inches of rain in East Texas. South Texas and the Coastal Bend are still reaping the benefits of another cutting from the boost of precipitation provided from Tropical Storm Beta a few weeks ago. Hay supplies in the drought stricken regions have tightened and a lot of producers are holding onto hay to see if prices are going to continue to rise throughout the winter months. Winter wheat is being planted, but the Panhandle, West, North, and Central regions will need some form of precipitation to facilitate emergence and growth of the crop.

Due to limited sales and price changes this report will be released bi-weekly until more volumes of hay is moving.

 The next report release will be October 30th
