Direct Hay Weighted Average Report for week ending 10/30/2020

Volume
This Week	Last Reported ()	Last Year

Please Note: The above volumes (tonnage, acres, and bales) listed on this USDA LPGMN report are for confirmed trades only, it does not include estimated volume (tonnage) for bids or offers to the trade.

Compared to the last report: Hay prices are mostly steady to firm. Movement continues to be steady as many livestock producers are stocking up for winter feeding. The majority of the state benefited from small amounts of moisture in the form of rain and snow this past week. In the Panhandle up to 8 inches of snow was reported which should help to the regions drought category and help give the poor to fair winter wheat stands a boost. Portions of South and Far East Texas are expected to benefit from rains produced by Hurricane Zeta.

A winter storm bringing freezing temperatures, snow, and ice moved across the Panhandle this week. The regions winter wheat crop should see the benefits of the accompanied 2-6 inches of snow.

Due to limited sales and price changes this report will be released bi-weekly until more volumes of hay is moving.

 The next report release will be November 13th
