Direct Hay Weighted Average Report for week ending 11/13/2020

Volume
This Week	Last Reported ()	Last Year

Please Note: The above volumes (tonnage, acres, and bales) listed on this USDA LPGMN report are for confirmed trades only, it does not include estimated volume (tonnage) for bids or offers to the trade.

Compared to the last report: Hay prices are mostly steady, but firming up as the majority of the state remains dry. The winter storm that brought cooler temperatures and some snow and rain to the Northern half of the state two weeks ago, spurred up demand for producers that had yet to get their winter feed stash purchased. Additionally, South Texas has been dry for the last few weeks which has begun to take its toll on some of the fall grazing pastures in the area. As a result, demand for hay has picked up but hay supplies in that area seem to be better than the rest of the state. Large volumes of hay that normally come in from Oklahoma and Colorado have been limited due to drought conditions in both of those regions, which has tightened supplies and increased demand all over.

Due to limited sales and price changes this report will be released bi-weekly until more volumes of hay is moving.

 The next report release will be November 27th
