PRICES OF FARM PRODUCTS RECEIVED BY PRODUCERS

1. THE NORTH ATLANTIC STATES

Monthly Prices Through 1925 and Other Data, by States, with Comparable Data for Earlier Years

Prepared by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics [1]

INTRODUCTION

Prices received by producers in their local markets have been collected for a number of years and have been published as "farm prices" as distinguished from "wholesale prices" of farm products at the central markets. Farm prices of crops and livestock in the several States have been regularly collected by the United States Department of Agriculture beginning with the prices of major crops on December 1, 1866, and values of livestock on January 1, 1867. This large volume of statistics regarding farm prices is now compiled and presented in a form ready for use as basic data by students generally for more specialized studies in many directions.

From 1866 to 1908 the prices were collected annually. Since January, 1908, prices of the more important farm products have been collected monthly in addition to the yearly prices.

The monthly prices of farm products, by States, assembled from the original records of the department are comparable with those now issued. The necessary conversions to the 15th of the month basis have been made by averaging the prices reported on the first of two successive months.

The farm prices of crops on December 1, 1866–1925, published, by crops, in many different volumes, are now brought together, by States. The farm values of livestock per head, January 1, 1867–1926, similarly published, are also brought together. Beginning with 1894, January 1 values of livestock have been obtained by age groups in each class, the full series to January 1, 1926, being given for each State in this bulletin. Average prices of farm crops for the crop year of 1924–25, livestock products for the calendar year 1924, and the value of livestock on farms January 1, 1925, by crop-reporting districts, were obtained by special inquiry in 1925 and have not been previously published. The tables containing these prices for each State show the price relationships prevailing at the time in different sections of the State and constitute the only general series of farm prices published by the department for areas smaller than a State. The location and approximate extent of the crop-reporting districts are indicated in Figure 1 for use in connection with these prices for the crop year 1924–25.

The wages of hired farm labor since 1866 are presented by States. The series of wages per day "other than harvest labor" published annually prior to 1924 was found to be reasonably comparable with wage data collected quarterly. A series of values of farm lands with and without improvements since 1912 are published for the first time in addition to the series of values of plow lands since 1916 as previously published.

The most readily available source of current data for bringing the several series forward to date is the supplement to the periodical, Crops and Markets, published monthly by the department. The yearbooks of the department regularly contain many of the data so published, usually in a somewhat different arrangement. For immediate current use the most widely important items may be gathered as soon as prepared from the mimeographed releases issued from Washington, and locally through the agricultural statisticians or the Crop and Livestock Market News Service offices of the department.

RELIABILITY OF THE DATA

The general confidence in the farm-price statistics of the department has sound foundation in practical use and in theory. This is particularly true with respect to their use in studies of price movements over a period of time. Every effort within the means of the department has been made to obtain and report prices which are reliable in every way. In the nature of the case, however, the prices for the major products are more reliable than for those less generally produced for sale, and for the States of heaviest production than for the States with small production.

Absolute accuracy of a reported price would mean that such a price is identical with that computed from reports of the total quantity sold and the total receipts from such sales. It is manifestly impossible to obtain such reports. Essentially accurate prices are obtained by averaging large numbers of reports, the measure of reliability being the size of the probable difference between the reported average price and the average of an indefinitely increased number of individual quotations. Tested in this way, many of the prices reported in the tables would not be materially changed by a much more extensive system of reports than that now in use.

The prices reported to the Department of Agriculture are the prices at which the products first changed hands when sold by the producer, usually the price the farmer receives in his local market. For most farm products there is no price "at the farm"; the prices called such include the variable item of cost to the farmer of transporting the product to the place where it changes hands.

The prices are for no specific grade or quality, which accounts for much of the variability in the average price. The reporter states the price prevailing for the grades and qualities within his observation. Of the major crops hay regularly shows a wide range in the price reported. The variations in prices of apples, attributable to kind and quality and method of selling, makes the sale average prices of apples much less reliable than the State averages of wheat, cotton, hogs, etc. Oat prices are somewhat affected by sales for seed as well as for feed.

Of the classes of livestock the prices of horses and milk cows show the widest variation, most noticeable in comparisons of the reported average prices for December 15 and for January 15 and the average values on January 1. Lack of complete agreement between these averages reflects the difference between prices for animals sold during the month and the values of animals of all ages and grades on the farms.

A somewhat detailed study of the reliability of the price data here included indicates that the prices of the more important farm products are based on a sufficient number of reports to render them reasonably stable and reliable. It is not feasible to strive for the same high degree of reliability with the minor products or with those products which are little sold by farmers, because of the large number of reporters that would be necessary. But even with the minor products the price data afford valuable information as to the general trend of prices over a period of a year or more.

Where monthly farm prices of important farm products in States of surplus production have been compared with primary market prices, the relationship existing over a period of years has been remarkably close. When farm prices have been compared for neighboring States where conditions are similar the price movements have kept very closely in step month by month.

The December 1 prices of farm crops and the January 1 value of livestock per head have been obtained from the reports of crop reporters, a much larger list than the monthly price-reporter list, which is made up almost entirely of small-town dealers in farm products, merchants, and a few well-informed farmers. Prior to January, 1924, the monthly prices of farm crops were obtained from farmers—the county crop reporters—of the Department of Agriculture. Since that time prices of all farm products have been obtained from the price reporters. In the small States the December 1 prices of farm crops and the January 1 values of livestock per head are probably more reliable than the monthly prices, as they are based on a much larger number of price reports.

Prior to 1894 the January 1 value of all classes of livestock per head was obtained by asking the farmer to report on the average value of all ages for the different classes of livestock. Beginning with 1894 the values of horses, mules, other cattle (not milk cows), and sheep have been obtained by age groups, and the values, by age groups, have been weighted by the relative number of each of the age groups according to the latest census report, to determine the average value of the class. This change in method would tend to break somewhat the comparability of the January 1 values of livestock for classes where the change was made. No change was made with milk cows or hogs.

The State averages are made up of prices reported from both surplus and deficit producing areas within the State. The price in a surplus area is roughly equivalent to the primary market price less the costs of marketing, whereas the price in a deficit area is roughly equivalent to the price in the farthest surplus-producing area from which it draws its supplies, plus cost of transportation and handling. With a bulky crop, such as potatoes, there may be considerable difference between the prices prevailing in surplus and deficit producing areas within the same State. The "farm price" reflects these differences, being higher than the price in the section of heaviest surplus and lower than the price in the deficit sections. The farm price of cabbage serves as a measure of the general trend of cabbage prices, but does not reflect the wide fluctuations which occur in a surplus area.

The averages tend to be self-weighting. To overcome as far as possible deficiencies in natural distribution of reports, the prices for the major crops from each crop-reporting district are first averaged and the district averages combined into the average price for the State by weighting them by the number of acres of the crop in the several districts for the latest available year. The prices of minor crops, livestock, and livestock products are not weighted, but there are usually more reports from those parts of a State where the sales of a particular product are more frequent.

The State averages are combined into average prices for the United States (as published in current releases, in the monthly supplements to Crops and Markets and in the yearbooks of the department), weighted in the case of crops by the latest estimate of production of each crop; livestock, by the number of head of each class on farms January 1; and livestock products and a few other products, by production as reported by the census.

The prices here published have been revised and corrected as far as possible with the data available. They are subject to defects in representativeness, to fluctuations in the sample, especially when the sample is small, and possibly to some error in computation. There may still be some prices inconsistent with the series. The Department of Agriculture wishes to be advised of such misfits in order that appropriate revision may later be made. Gaps in the tables for some products mean that not enough prices were reported to justify an estimate for the month.

No yearly average of wages of hired farm labor has been computed for individual States for the years 1924 and 1925, when these data were collected quarterly. The overlapping of the series reported annually through 1923 and quarterly, beginning with January, 1923, provides the means of computing averages for 1924 and 1925 by some combination of the quarterly rates.

For the United States a simple average of the rates of wages, by the month, for April, July, October, and the following January seems entirely satisfactory for comparisons with earlier years, whereas an average computed with weights of 1 for April, 5 for July, 5 for October, and 1 for the following January seemed most suitable for the series of wages by the day.

The method used for computing the average from quarterly data is not satisfactory for many individual States. A suitable method for any particular State may be devised by experimentation, as indicated. Published records do not reveal the year to which the averages of the inquiries made in the spring of 1875 and later years, through 1892, apply. From 1866 to 1890 the wage rates, by the month, apply to labor hired by the year. Since 1891 no distinction was made between labor hired by the year and that hired for the season.

The land values are reported on March 1 each year and represent the average of crop reporters' judgment of land values in their localities. The values represent relative changes in land values. It is suggested that the best use of these land-value figures would be as the basis for index numbers of changes in land values over a period of years.

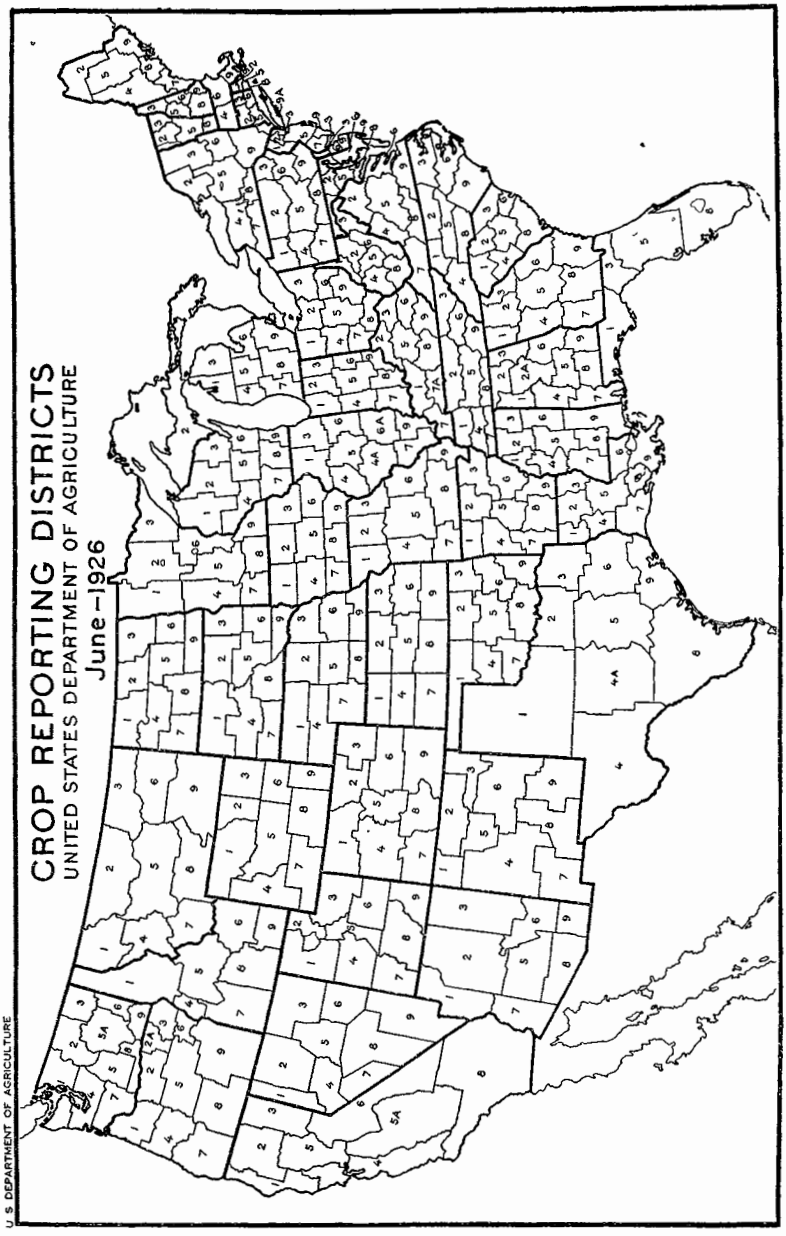

FIG. 1.—This map will prove useful in interpreting the tables of prices by crop-reporting districts, 1924–25

[1] These prices are the estimated prices of farm products received by producers on the 15th of the month as currently reported in the supplements to Crops and Markets monthly, by States, or in the case of some products for which prior to January, 1924, prices were reported on the 1st of the month, converted to the 15th of the month by averaging the prices reported on the 1st of two successive months. Prices were first collected monthly in 1908, the list being extended from time to time. All the available monthly prices are shown.

[1] These prices are the estimated prices of farm products received by producers on the 15th of the month as currently reported in the supplements to Crops and Markets monthly, by States, or in the case of some products for which prior to January, 1924, prices were reported on the 1st of the month, converted to the 15th of the month by averaging the prices reported on the 1st of two successive months. Prices were first collected monthly in 1908, the list being extended from time to time. All the available monthly prices are shown.

[1] The values of all farm lands have been collected from crop correspondents since 1912, and have been drawn on for various purposes, but not previously published as a series, by States.

The values of plow lands have been published as prepared in supplements to Crops and Markets and its predecessors and in the Yearbooks of the department, a few years at a time. The full series to 1926, by States, is here published for the first time.
