The dry whole milk price moved higher at both the top and bottom of the range this week. Production remains narrowly focused on fulfilling contracts, with little product available beyond that. Spot market activity slowed, reflecting weaker demand. Contacts suggest this sluggish pace may persist through the remainder of the summer months.

Prices for: U.S., All First Sales, F.O.B., Conventional, and Edible Dry Whole Milk

Price Range - 26% Butterfat; $/LB:	2.0900 - 2.2900
